

Salarpuria Sattva employs native labourers to keep the construction momentum

By

Sobia Khan

In a bid to deal with labour crisis and on-time project handovers, Salarpuria Sattva Group has employed over 600 native labourers at their projects across Karnataka, during this COVID breakout.

This will not only help in continuum of production, investment, labour and native supply chains in the state, but it will also be instrumental in revival of the real estate sector, sooner than anticipated.

Bijay Agarwal, MD, Salarpuria Sattva, said, "The pandemic has impacted industries across every domain including real estate. Amidst this major economic slowdown, we feel that the need of the hour should be employment and demand generation. We hope this will not only help us in handing over projects on time, but also will help ease the labour shortage in Karnataka and neighbouring states, and help them to survive during this unprecedented time."

With millions of workers migrating to their hometowns, continuing the momentum at the construction sites has been a constant challenge for the developers. In a grim scenario like this, while Govt. is taking measures to uplift the present economic situation, companies across industries will have to be proactive and self-sufficient.

Headquartered in Bengaluru, the firm has 36 million sq.ft under construction and 32 million sq.ft in the planning stage.